Couple says goodbye to church they founded, served 40 years

By SUSAN RUDDIMAN

Mississippi Press Religion Editor

FORTS LAKE — The Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Darrow Cauley said goodbye in September to 40 years of service to a church they founded.

Members of the Forts Lake Assembly of God presented a plaque to the Cauleys commending them for their faithful and dedicated service to the church.

"On Sept. 9, I preached what we called my retirement service. It was my last message as the official pastor," Cauley said.

He and his wife, the former Vanda Jean Ard of Bogalusa, La., moved out of the parsonage next door to the church, but they haven't gone far.

Their new home is a freshly built house in the Forts Lake community. Cauley said he expects to remain as an assistant pastor, particularly since his son, Timothy Cauley, is the new pastor.

"Because of health reasons, I just wanted to retire and I guess that I needed to get out of the burden and load of pastoring. At 65, your get up and go got up and went. The Lord has certainly been good to us," Cauley said.

"Our lives have centered around the community and church. It's been our life," Mrs. Cauley agreed.

The couple has seen quite a bit of progress in 40 years.

A native of Pascagoula, Cauley left his job at Ingalls Shipbuilding to serve in the Army from 1942-46. He married his bride in 1944. Once he left the

His earlier Sunday sermons were conducted from Marvin Mahathy's front porch.

"His home had a big porch and and others would come in before services and sprinkle the floor down with water to keep the dust down," Cauley said.

Canvas was laid around the Pascagoula and moved to the new parsonage in 1959. Three years earlier, Cauley had quit his job at the shipyard to be a full-time preacher.

A two-story Sunday school classroom was added to the sanctuary. Thirteen years ago, a new sanctuary, along with a pastor's office, was added and the original church was converted into a nursery and classrooms. A fellowship hall was built that has a complete kitchen.

Every August, the Forts Lake Assembly of God has hosted a camp meeting under a big tent. After the tent fell down, Cauley decided they needed a permanent tabernacle. With the new open air metal structure built, a youth camp was started where the youngsters used the Sunday school classrooms as dormitories. When more land was purchased, bringing the church grounds up to 15 acres, they were able to build a dormitory for the June camp. Added three years ago was a daytime kid's camp.

All these structures are paid for, the Cauleys are proud to point out.

The Cauleys reared three sons — Dwight, Timothy and Mark — all whom live in Jackson County, and they have eight grandchildren.

A native of Pascagoula, Cauley left his job at Ingalls Shipbuilding to serve in the Army from 1942-46. He married his bride in 1944. Once he left the Army, the couple lived in Pascagoula where Cauley returned to the shipyard.

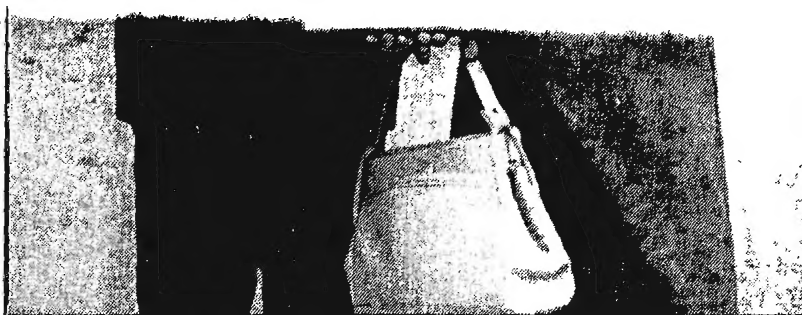

He said it was during that period they attended First Assembly of God Church in Pascagoula where they were saved and became active members.

He then suffered a terrible accident at Ingalls when a piece of steel fell on him.

"It was just a miracle he lived. The doctors told me if he did live, he wouldn't be able to walk again. He was out of the hospital walking in three months," Mrs. Cauley said.

"After the accident I felt the Lord calling me to the ministry. I started preaching at different churches. I'd go here and there to speak," Cauley said.

He found his niche in 1950 when he went to the small Forts Lake community in southeast Jackson County just two miles from the Alabama state line.

His earlier Sunday sermons were conducted from Marvin Mahathy's front porch.

"His home had a big porch and they would sit on the porch and I would stand out in the yard and preach," Cauley said.

The next step to growth was the erection of the Army medical tent.

"It was very crude. We made homemade benches and had oil-burning heaters that let off smoke. We stayed there for a year, year-and-one-half," Cauley said.

Mahathy donated one acre of land for the church's first permanent structure on Forts Lake Road. The 70-by-37-foot cinder block building was completed just before Christmas 1952.

"We moved into the block building with a dirt floor just to get out of the tent because it was so cold," Mrs. Cauley said.

"We put shavings of sawdust on the floor and brought in the old homemade benches. We were so proud to be in there. I and others would come in before services and sprinkle the floor down with water to keep the dust down," Cauley said.

Canvas was laid around the altar so members could kneel without the clinging sawdust shavings.

"My husband then said one day that by faith, we were going to pour that floor," Mrs. Cauley said.

When he ordered the $600 worth of concrete, there was no money. By the time the cement floor was finished, they had the funds to pay for the job.

From that humble beginning the church grounds, buildings and membership has grown extensively.
